population are in favor of the establishment of a republic.

The new Government at Belgrade has abolished the Legislative Assembly created by the late King Alexander and has renewed the ancient Skupshkina, which has been ordered to assemble next Monday for the purpose of ratifying the proclamation of Prince Peter Karageorgevitch as King. The Assembly just abolished was made up of appointees of the late King and did not contain a member who was opposed to Alexander's policy.

Prince Alexis Karageorgevitch, a nephew of the newly proclaimed King of Servia, who has himself been a pretender to the throne, during the course of an interview here to-day announced that he had abandoned all claim thereto and welcomed the advent of his uncle as the best solution. The Prince, like other well-informed persons, attributes the revolution to dissatisfaction at the late King Alexander's marriage, to the at tendant scandals and to the King's hostility to the Radicals.

SONGS OF JOY SUNG IN THE CITY OF BELGRADE

BELGRADE, Servia, June 12.-Rain is falling, but the enthusiasm of the people has not been dampened. The city has been en fete all night. Bands of students paraded the streets singing the "Marseillaise." Everywhere the soldiers are greeted with cheers, despite the sterness with which they repressed disorder. The people were allowed to drink and sing and shout ribald and contemptuous allusions to the dead Queen, but when they gathered in large crowds the soldiers dispersed them. Many houses are

REPELLED AFTER BATTLE.

The new Cabinet was sitting at the Palace when word was brought that the Danube division was marching on the city. Gen. Atanarovitch, the new Minister of War, at once despatched Col. Gagowits with the Seventh Regiment to repel the invaders. A flerce fight ensued, in which the opposing commanders were shot down and many soldiers killed. The Eighth Regiment was repulsed, and later in the day, after hearing of the King's assassination, the officers and men sent word of their acquiescence in the new order of things.

Col. Maschin, former brother-in-law of the murdered Queen, is in supreme command of the military forces now in charge of the capital. The country will be under military rule until the meeting of the national representatives next Monday. The elections held last week, at which no members of the opposition were returned, have been declared void.

APPEALED TO AUSTRIA.

An embarrassing complication was narrowly averted by the foresight of M. Dumba, the Austrian Minister. When Court Marshal Nickoljewitch escaped from the palace and sought refuge at the Austrian Embassy he told M. Dumba the army had revolted and was rioting through the streets. The Minister despatched a messenger by boat across the Danube to summon Austrian soldiers to guard the Embassy. Later when he learned there would be no violence he countermanded the request and avoided the serious difficulty that might have arisen had Austrian troops entered the capital.

According to a participant, who professes to have been an eye-witness brother of Queen Draga's former husband; Major Aginovitch and Ljubor Schiokovics, who served two years of a twenty-year sentence for attempting to assassinate King Milan. They enlisted all the leading men in the HACKED WITH BAYONETS. army and former adherents of the Liberal party. Col. Naumovics, the King's Adjutant, was won over and it was arranged that he would instruct the palace guards to admit his friends. The conspirators began work at nightfall. All leaves had been suspended and detachments were told off from Regiment, in command of Col. Maschin, surrounded the palace at midnight. trying to telephone to Police Headquarters. Other troops guarded the approaches to prevent interference.

MURDER NOT INTENDED.

The leaders planned after forcing their way into the palace to demand that the King sign a document setting adrfit Queen Draga, ordering her brothers into exile and restoring the constitution he had arbitrarily suspended last April. In the event of his refusal they were sworn to demand his abdication, and if all failed to make him a prisoner.

The prearranged plan failed because the King had anticipated trouble and barricaded himself, and when entrance to his room was gained by the use of dynamite his answer to the proposal to put away Queen Draga was to shoot down the officer who presented the request.

Col. Naumovics's plan to betray the Palace into the hands of the inwaders failed through the faithfulness of Capt. Panajovitch, of the Palace racks the troops rushed out and cheered the regicide. Guards. He refused admission to Cel. Maschin and ordered the guard to lowing cablegram from Charles S. Wilson, Secretary of Legation at Athens, and fought his way in. Capt. Panajovitch was stabbed to death by bayonet thrusts and the soldiers behind him swept off their feet. In the hallway Lieuts. Lundjevitza, brothers of the Queen, rallied the guard and made flerce resistance. They fell pierced by innumerable bullets and sabre thrusts. Dying, they dragged themselves toward each other and kissed before they KING AND QUEEN WERE

Meanwhile Col. Naumovics had burst open the door leading to the IKng's apartment with a bomb. Col. Naumovics, Col. Maschin, Col. Mischics and Major Lazarovitch, the latter an open enemy of the King, rushed into the room with drawn revolvers.

KILLS THE LEADER.

The King, in his nightdress, stood in the middle of the room, pale and excited. In his hand he held a revolver. He demanded furiously the reason of the intrusion Col. Naumovics held toward him a paper, saving:

"We demand Your Majesty's signature to this paper. It contains a promise on your part to break with the woman Draga, this woman of ill-repute, who has brought disgrace on your house and the nation. Failing this, you must abdicate."

The King stepped back toward his bed, and, aiming deliberately, fired his revolver at Col. Naumovics, who fell dead, shot through the head. At thi: moment Queen Draga appeared at a door opposite crying for offered a most heroic resistance in another part of the palace.

At the sight of Col. Maschin, inflamed with passion and with the just blood in his eye, the King turned to the Queen and bade her flee for her life They both ran from the room, followed by the officers. Benind RUSSIA IS READY TO the latter came a stream of shouting soldiers.

The Kins and Queen ran through the sleeping apartments, slamming the doors behind them. They were followed by shots from the soldiers. they reached the roof of the palace in safety, but here they were overtaken.

The King stood in front of his consort and faced the enemy unflinchnely. He bore himself with royal courage fearlessly to the last. final scene was over in a moment. Major Lazarovitch stepped up to His Majesty and discharged his revolver full in his face.

The King fell, but raised himself as if to speak. A second shot was fired and Alexander fell back dead.

The Queen was fatally shot by a soldier. Another man stabbed her the neck with a bayonet as she fell over her husband's body.

LONDON, June 12.-Herbert Vivian, the well-known traveller and author of a book on Servia, writes: "I decline to believe this crime has the countenance of the Servian nation. I have conversed with all classes and know absolutely that the only malcontents were a few ladies, who were jealous of Queen Draga, because they thought themselves more suitable to the White House this afternoon by apshare the throne; a few officers, who thought themselves entitled to more pointment to bid the President fareweit speedy promotion, and a few professional politicians, who coveted office.

When I last had the honor of an audience of the King he talked to me of the bad geographical position of the capital. He said no other country had a capital on its frontier. A scribe need only cross it and he could telegraph any lies he liked, while the Servian officials had to wait until they were published before they could refute them. I gathered that the King contemplated making Nish the capital. It was his and Queen Draga's favorite resort, as it was King Milan's.
